WELCOME FROM NCLEJ'S EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
MARGARITA ROSA

Dear Friends,

I am so pleased to welcome you this evening as we honor two extraordinary individuals, Kevin McCarthy and Camille Holmes, and the National Center for Law and Economic Justice (NCLEJ) celebrates its 50th anniversary of fighting for fairness for people in need.

Having just completed my first 50 days as Executive Director of NCLEJ, I am thankful for you, our supporters, without whom our work would not be possible.

At this time in our nation's history, when the disparities in wealth and opportunity are growing exponentially, NCLEJ's mission is more essential than ever. For a half century, low-income and disadvantaged Americans and their allies have worked hand-in-hand with NCLEJ in pursuit of social and economic justice – and the victories have been many.

As a life-long advocate for civil rights and social justice, I am delighted to be leading NCLEJ with its extraordinary staff, board, clients and supporters.

Here's to the next 50 years!

Margarita Rosa, Esq.

CAMILLE D. HOLMES

*Director, Leadership and Racial Equity
National Legal Aid & Defender Association*

Camille Holmes is the Director of Leadership and Racial Equity at the National Legal Aid & Defender Association. Camille came to NLADA from the Center for Law and Social Policy, where she was instrumental in the founding of the Mississippi Center for Justice, a nonprofit public interest law firm explicitly committed to advancing racial and economic justice.

Over the past fifteen years, Camille has worked with her colleagues at NLADA, CLASP, and other partner organizations, particularly the Legal Services of Northern California, as well as the Kirwan Institute for the Study of Race and Ethnicity, the Haas Institute for a Fair and Inclusive Society and, more recently, the Sargent Shriver National Center on Poverty Law on equipping the legal aid community to increase its effectiveness at the intersection of race and poverty. Her work has connected leaders across legal aid, civil rights, and racial justice organizations; shared research-based strategies to promote inclusion and equity; advanced broad-based and systemic advocacy approaches; and encouraged leadership that values self-awareness, wellness, and community wisdom.

In 2009, Camille received a Race Consciousness in the Law Award from the Equal Justice Society for her work promoting racial equity in the legal aid community. In May 2015 she was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Johnson State College in Vermont and delivered the commencement address. Camille serves on the board of directors of the Poverty and Race Research Action Council.

Camille has also been executive director of the Southern Africa Legal Services and Legal Education Project, an attorney at the D.C. law firm of Wilmer, Cutler, Pickering (now WilmerHale), and a law clerk for the Honorable Damon J. Keith on the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. She is a cum laude graduate of Harvard Law School and Harvard and Radcliffe Colleges.

Goodbye document exhibits.
Hello paperless depositions.

AgileLaw replaces paper deposition exhibits with laptops and tablets.

Reduce Preparation Time

Quickly organize all documents for each deposition by putting them in a specific order, assigning labels and tags, and making private annotations. No more shuffling through stacks of paper or losing important notes.

Eliminate Unnecessary Expenses

Save on printing, copying, and shipping expenses before the deposition. After the deposition, save on court reporter fees related to providing scanned versions of the document exhibits.

Access Every Document

All case documents are at your fingertips during the deposition. Never worry about forgetting a document at the office and stop wasting precious deposition time looking for the right exhibit.

Leave the exhibit binders behind, bring every document you need, and access them instantly.
