As Recession Persists, Poverty Climbs

New census data reveals the stark impact of the recession. In 2009, 43.6 million people – one out of seven people in the United States – were in poverty. This is the largest number of people in poverty in the fifty-one years poverty estimates have been published.

Almost one out of sixteen people were in deep poverty (income below half of the poverty line). Racial and ethnic minorities, women, children, and families headed by single women continue to be particularly vulnerable to poverty and deep poverty, and their status worsened over the past year.

People Living in Poverty in the United States

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Millions of Persons</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2006</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2007</td>
<td>32</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2008</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2009</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

As Recession Persists, Poverty Climbs

New census data reveals the stark impact of the recession. In 2009, 43.6 million people – one out of seven people in the United States – were in poverty. This is the largest number of people in poverty in the fifty-one years poverty estimates have been published.

Almost one out of sixteen people were in deep poverty (income below half of the poverty line). Racial and ethnic minorities, women, children, and families headed by single women continue to be particularly vulnerable to poverty and deep poverty, and their status worsened over the past year.

People Living in Poverty in the United States

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Millions of Persons</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2006</td>
<td>30</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2007</td>
<td>32</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2008</td>
<td>34</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2009</td>
<td>43</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
I eagerly enlisted when President Johnson launched his “War on Poverty.” Sure, the rhetoric was over the top, but we felt the wind was behind us. It would take perseverance, hard work, and some luck, but we were sure we would succeed.

Now there is no talk of a war on poverty. As middle-income families reel from the worst recession in their lifetimes, Washington is consumed with debate over whether to extend tax breaks to the wealthiest among us. Those at the bottom of the economic ladder are ignored, or even demonized.

Whether ignored, or demonized, their numbers are growing at an alarming rate. Last month’s Census report confirmed that destitution is swamping more and more of our people. Over a third of all children of color, and almost a third of all single female-headed families, are mired in poverty. These children, their families, are our country’s future. What will become of them?

At NCLEJ, we are waging our own war on poverty. We are assuring that agencies provide vital benefits to eligible families – and we learn, over and over, how we are making a real difference in the lives of thousands of people, every day. And now we are stepping up our efforts to assure that the new health care reform works for people at the bottom of the income scale.

We are able to wage this war on poverty thanks to our many supporters, including an extraordinary Board of Directors. I cannot begin to express my appreciation for Paul Dodyk’s decade of leadership. We could not have made it through without him – he has more than earned the right to turn over the reins. Thanks also to John DeWitt Gregory, our Vice Chair for many years. I am happy to add that both Paul and John have agreed to stay on the Board.

I look forward eagerly to working with our new leadership team. Jennifer Selendy, our new Board Chair, has worked with us in the trenches in our successful Maryland litigation. Doug Curtis has headed our Dinner Committee, which has gone from success to success. And Cassandra Barham has brought to us the wisdom gained from many effective years fighting for people in her community.

They, and I, are grateful to all who have supported us in our work. We need you now more than ever.

Henry A. Freedman
Executive Director
Briefing Paper on FEMA’s Housing Policies in the Event of a Disaster.

More than five years after Hurricane Katrina, FEMA is unprepared to meet the temporary housing needs of people with disabilities, and others, following a disaster. NCLEJ Senior Attorney Cary LaCheen prepared this paper for a Congressional Briefing convened by the National Low Income Housing Coalition on September 29.

Modernizing Public Benefits Programs: What the Law Says State Agencies Must Do to Serve People with Disabilities.

NCLEJ and Maximus recently issued this easy-to-use booklet that discusses the wide variety of obligations agencies must meet to serve people with disabilities.

Economic Justice and Access to Health Care are LGBT Issues.

NCLEJ Staff Attorney Laura Redman describes the barriers low income LGBT individuals and families confront in seeking access to Medicaid and Children’s Health Programs in an article in the Summer 2010 Georgetown Journal on Poverty Law and Policy.

The Closed Digital Door: State Public Benefits Agencies’ Failure to Make Websites Accessible to People with Disabilities and Usable for Everyone.

Cary LaCheen’s report describes a host of problems that make it difficult for people with disabilities to use public benefit agency websites, and offers solutions.

Legal Services Corporation Annual Report with Column by Henry Freedman.

Henry was asked to share his reminiscences as a member of the first-year (1967) class of Reginald Heber Fellows in the Legal Services Corporation Report, which celebrated the 35th Anniversary of the Legal Service Corporation Act.
New Mexico Court Allows Farm Workers to Challenge Denial of Workers’ Compensation

In Griego v. New Mexico Workers’ Compensation Commission, the State trial court denied a motion to dismiss and ruled that a severely injured New Mexico farmworker and two groups that represent farm and ranch laborers may pursue their claim that the exclusion of farm and ranch laborers from the state’s workers’ compensation program violates the state constitution’s equal protection clause. If this case is successful, thousands of agricultural workers, many of whom are recent immigrants, will, for the first time, be able to access the workers’ compensation program if injured while at work. Organizational plaintiffs are Sin Fronteras Organizing Project and HELP-New Mexico, Inc. Co-counsel are the New Mexico Center on Law and Poverty and the Sargent Shriver National Center on Poverty Law.

We’ve Been Busy — and Still Are!

Henry Freedman will participate on an Economic Justice panel at a conference convened by the UNC Center for Civil Rights, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and others entitled “The Unfinished Work: Advancing New Strategies in the Struggle for Civil Rights.” The conference will be held in early November in Chapel Hill, NC.

Also in November, Henry and NCLEJ Board member Cassandra Barham will attend the National Legal Aid and Defenders Association (NLADA) Annual Conference in Atlanta.

In October, Henry had the honor of presenting the Exemplar Award to Rick Cotton, Executive Vice President and General Counsel, NBC Universal, at NLADA’s Exemplar Award Dinner in Washington, DC. Rick was honored by NCLEJ at our annual awards dinner in 2008. His long history with legal services extends back to the 1970s, when he was a managing attorney for New Hampshire’s Legal Assistance. In the 1980s, he represented NCLEJ in successful litigation against the Legal Services Corporation.

Also in October, Cary LaCheen presented at the session “ADA Advocacy with Local Departments of Social Services” at the New York Association on Independent Living’s Statewide Conference in Troy.

Marc Cohan played several key roles in NLADA’s “A New Era of Advocacy: Substantive Law Conference and Litigation and Advocacy Directors Conference,” in July in Chicago. He led and presented in two panels on e-discovery/electronic evidence and in a session on drafting and enforcing consent decrees.

Laura Redman participated in Columbia Law School Human Rights Institute’s “Ethics and Domestic Human Rights Lawyering” conference in June, which was co-sponsored by the National Economic and Social Rights Initiative, Center for Constitutional Rights, and Center for Reproductive Rights.

Farewell to Four Deferred Associates and a Volunteer!

Deferred Associates Stephen Miller, Adam Young, Pierre Ciric, and Young Lee, along with volunteer Jacob Meyer, all worked with NCLEJ during the past year and are now starting the next chapter of their lives. We miss them and wish them well!

Thanks to Our Summer and Fall Interns, Externs, and Fellow!

INTERNS
Lauren Almquist
Harvard Law School
Tiffany Femiano
Touro College, Jacob D. Fuchseberg Law Center
Daris Isbell
Brooklyn Law School
Courtney Libon
Fordham University School of Law
Ryan Nelson
Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law
Rebecca Schonberg
Berkeley Law, Boalt Hall

Rachel Seelig
Brooklyn Law School
Megan Shipley
Indiana University Maurer School of Law

EXTERNS
Andrew Giering
Sullivan & Cromwell LLP
Alex Ginsberg
Debevoise & Plimpton LLP

FELLOW
Ashley Graham
Fordham Public Service Fellow (Fordham University School of Law ’10)
NCLEJ Dinner Honored
Amy Schulman, Mark Greenberg, and Partners in Maryland Court Victory

Pfizer Senior Vice President and General Counsel Amy Schulman; HHS Administration for Children and Families Deputy Assistant Secretary for Policy Mark Greenberg; and the Homeless Persons Representation Project, Public Justice Center, and Kirkland & Ellis LLP (partners in NCLEJ’s Maryland court victory, represented by Carolyn Johnson, Debra Gardner, and Jennifer Selendy, respectively) were honored at NCLEJ’s annual awards dinner on June 9 at The Lighthouse at Chelsea Piers in New York City. Jeff Johnson reprised his role as emcee for the dinner, which was attended by approximately 350 people.

Through its annual awards dinner, NCLEJ celebrates the accomplishments of remarkable individuals and organizations, while raising much needed funds to support our programs. Dinner Co-Chairs included Jeffrey B. Kindler, Kenneth R. Feinberg, Aaron R. Marcu, and Jonathan D. Schwartz. Doug Curtis chaired NCLEJ’s Board Dinner Committee.

Above left:
L to R: Gina Mannix, NCLEJ Staff; Michaeline Curtis; Cassandra Barham, NCLEJ Board

Above right:
L to R: Honoree Amy Schulman, Co-Chair and Award Presenter Jeffrey Kindler, Board Member Mary Lu Bilek, Co-Chair Aaron Marcu

Bottom right:
Emcee Jeff Johnson
Low-Income People with Disabilities Continue to Benefit from NCLEJ’s Advocacy

NCLEJ Senior Attorney Cary LaCheen, who heads NCLEJ’s work on behalf of people with disabilities, has been extremely active during the past six months on efforts at the national, state, and local levels.

In late August, Cary convened and addressed meetings in Washington, DC, with high-ranking officials at the U.S. Department of Agriculture/Food and Nutrition Service and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. She secured the meetings to press these agencies to take steps to require state Medicaid and food stamp agencies to make their websites accessible to people with disabilities.

In New York State, at the request of the Division of Criminal Justice Services, Cary is preparing a curriculum for training agency security officers to ensure that those in need are not turned away for anxious behaviors and other issues that characterize their disabilities. Since security guards are often the first contact with a government agency, such training is greatly needed.

In Westchester, she met with the Acting Commissioner of the Department of Social Services (DSS), the Director of the County Office for the Disabled, and members of the Westchester Disability Advocacy Partnership in September. She is working with these agencies to provide suggestions about what their ADA policies/instructions should say. In August, she met with the DSS Commissioner and DSS attorney in Wayne County and will be following up with them.

In New York City, Cary addressed a meeting of advocates at Community Voices Heard in August about WeCARE, the City’s work program intended to serve more than 45,000 people a year with disabilities. She is seeking to ensure that people who are not employable will not be sent to work activities they cannot perform and that accommodations will be made for people who need assistance in attending appointments and overcoming bureaucratic hurdles. New York City recently issued an RFP for a new round of WeCARE contracts, so her efforts are very timely.

In September, Cary conducted a training for MFY Legal Services’ Mental Health Law Project on challenges faced by low-income people with mental health problems.